LES POUBELLES DES ARTISTES

NEW YORK

(1970-1973)

LEILA HELLER GALLERY.

PREFACE

Marrying the exigencies of Dadaist drives, a performative aesthetics of shock, and assemblage techniques, Arman (né Arman Fernandez, Nice, France, 1928), is considered one of the leading figures of the French postwar Nouveaux Réalistes, a group which also included Yves Klein and Jean Tinguely, whose work is marked by an aesthetic foregrounding of the ‘real’ in terms of the world of raw objects, materials, and physical processes. The body of work presented here gives the viewer one of Arman’s most celebrated artistic strategies, the creation of artist Poubelles, or large Plexiglas containers loaned to artists between 1970 and 1973, in New York, and filled by them with refuse from their studios—including that of Bernar Venet, Sol LeWitt, Robert Rauschenberg, Peter Hutchinson, and Joseph Kosuth, amongst others. What Peter Schjeldahl called upon the occasion of their first exhibition at John Gibson Gallery in 1973, “tantalizing form[s] of self-portrait”, with the aid of history, each of these works can be seen as well as commentary on detritus and production in material, late-capitalist existence: archives as portraits, witnesses to an era.
