Thought-Provoking Video Likens Couples Using Their Phones In Bed To Foreplay

By Melissa Goh, 12 Sep 2014

New York City-based artist Rachel Lee Hovnanian has created a video, titled 'Foreplay', that explores the role of technology in our intimate lives.

The video projection shows four couples entwined in sheets on a bed, with their eyes fixed on their electronic devices and ignoring their partners.

It gives a truthful comment on how the interactive experience of human relationships are now being replaced with a worrying dependence of technology.

The Plastic Perfect exhibition will be held at Leila Heller Gallery, from now through 18 October 2014.
