Dubai, UAE: Leila Heller Gallery is pleased to announce award-winning artist Maxi Cohen's first solo show in the UAE, titled 'The Poetry of Water', opening in November 2023.

This exhibition, a collection of water art captured in the UAE, includes paintings, large format photographs, multimedia works, immersive installations, mixed-reality, and video furniture.

Maxi's engagement with water, as a medium, began in the hot springs in the desert of California, where she became mesmerized by the lush visual abstractions within the water. Thus began a twenty-five year pursuit, filming and photographing rivers, oceans, springs, and waterfalls all around the world...from Argentina to Zambia, Iceland to Antarctica.

Maxi came to Dubai, during Expo 2020, to learn more about current climate change innovations and issues of global sustainability. In this time of climate change, deserts are expanding all over the globe. As the UAE is 80% desert, innovation in food and water security is crucial. Maxi discovered that the bodies of water in the UAE were none like she had experienced elsewhere in the world. That moment of epiphany presented an irresistible challenge for her as an artist. As she looked and studied, the water showed its beauty in unexpected ways. Maxi states, "the greatest wonder was photographing in the Jubail Mangrove Park, where, when I arrived, there was no water and hours later, it flooded; an ever-changing landscape devoid of lushness, weirdly different, and ultimately inspiring. As I looked through my camera, the vegetation reminded me of Arabic calligraphy in the fluid way it curved and danced. When I saw the large-scale prints I had made from my photographs, I started to paint on their surfaces, calling on the spirit of water to speak through the art."

As part of her ongoing research into the majesty of water, Maxi is also creating art that shifts people's consciousness regarding the water in our bodies. Our bodies are about 65% water. To create Bio-Resonant art works, Maxi is collaborating with the renowned team from dArt NYC, founded by William Wong. dArt NYC's mission is to create a deeper emotional connection with art by engaging all five senses through mixed reality, sound, haptics, scent and taste. Wearing an EEG headband, a haptic vest, and an MR headset, viewers will be able to see their own brain activity translated in water. This is the first Bio-Resonant art experience stored and verified on the Blockchain.

This breakthrough in art and science enables viewers to experience their own thoughts, demonstrating that our thoughts impact our biology. Translated through electromagnetism, the water in us carries information, affecting our cellular biology – our thoughts altering the gallery of our own body's cells.

Inspiring in us the possibility of being personally resonant, it is Maxi's hope that her work not only brings beauty and serenity to people's environments, but will also enrich the health and well-being of the people and the land of the UAE and beyond.

In Maxi's own words, "Water recovers me. It is where I dive deep, free the mind, and let go of my body. It is the element of creativity, a womb-like return... inner peace, free flowing. May this work be my prayer for peace, for clean water for all. May it bring beauty, calm, and uplift the spirit."
