BAHAR SABSEVARI

Biography

Bahar Sabzevari is an Iranian-born visual artist based in Brooklyn, New York. Drawing from Iranian mythology, storytelling traditions, and her diasporic experience, her multidisciplinary practice spans painting, drawing, and object-making. Her work explores cultural memory, power structures, and the role of myth and narrative in shaping collective belief systems—particularly in relation to nature, technology, and contemporary disconnection.

Sabzevari's work has been exhibited internationally across Europe and the United States and has been featured in publications including The Brooklyn Rail, Aspire Magazine, and Maize Magazine. She has received recognition and support from institutions such as the Adolph & Esther Gottlieb Foundation, TED's Immigrant Diaspora Series, the China Academy of Fine Arts, and Civitella Ranieri in Italy.

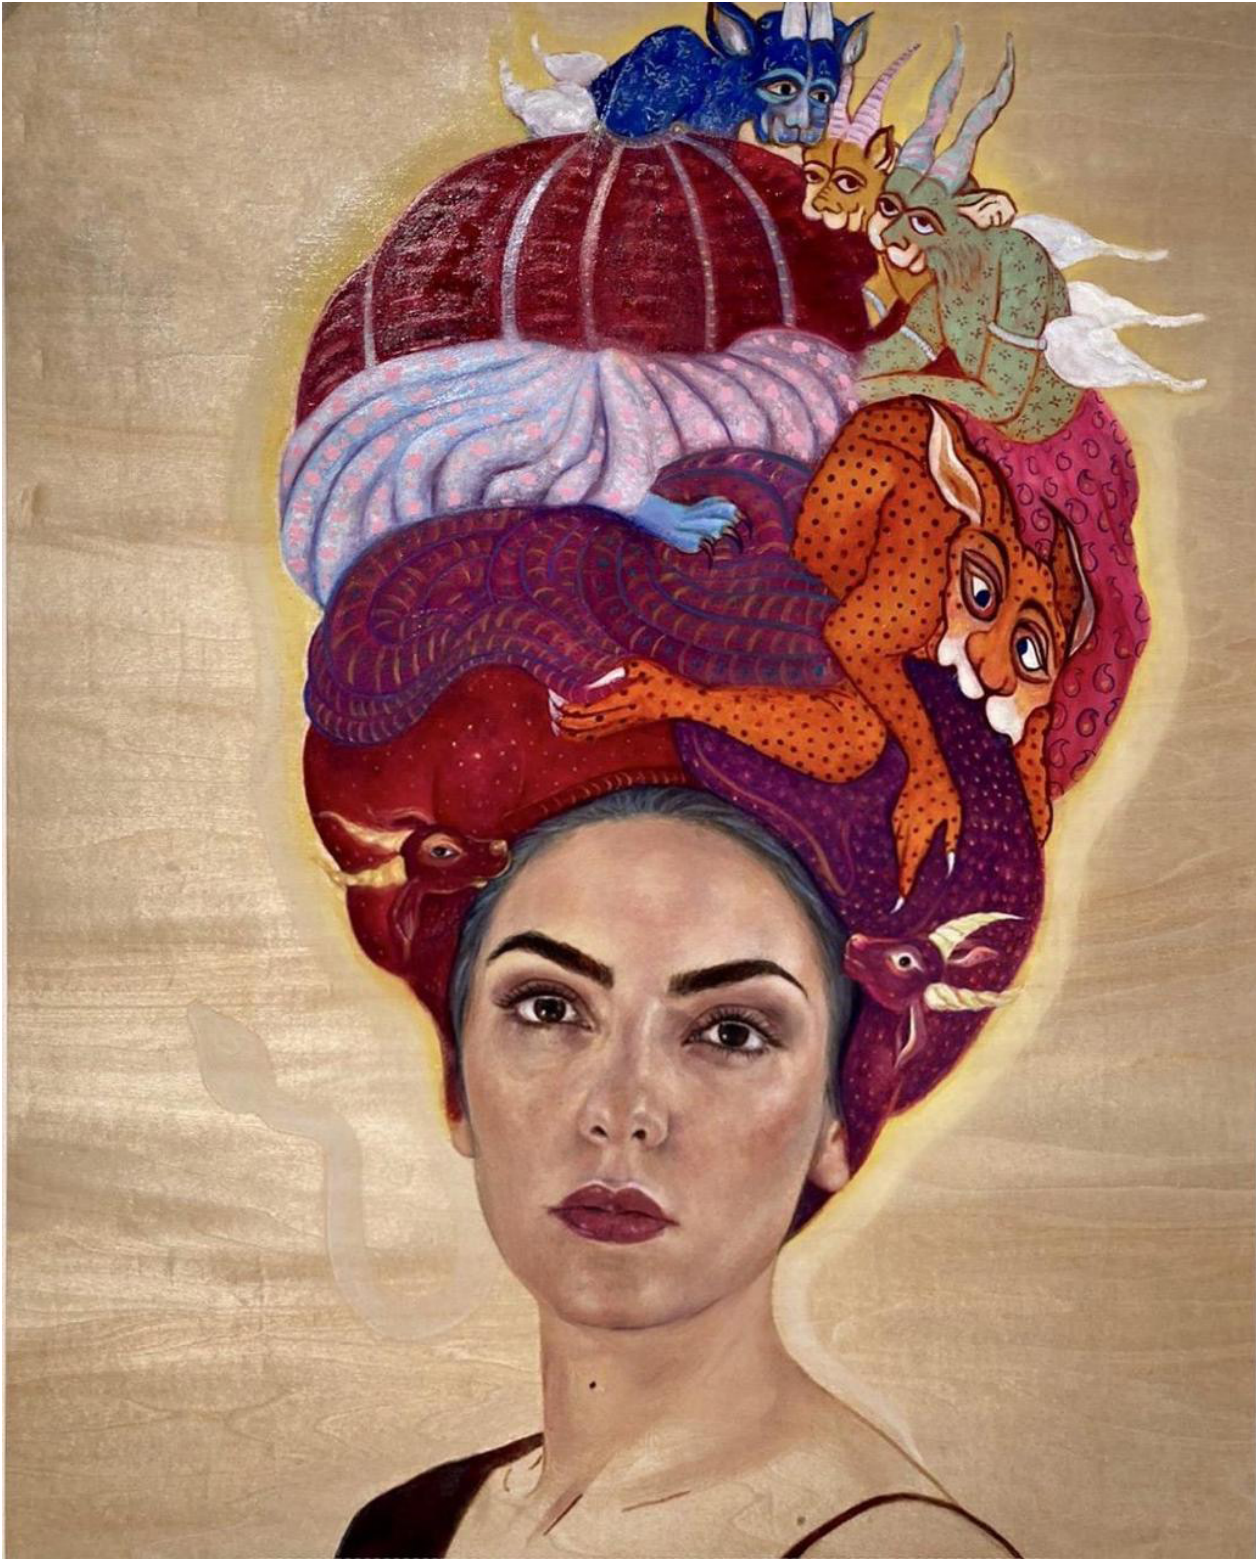

A short statement about this show:

Ancestral Algorithms traces a journey from ancestral myth and natural memory to artificial intelligence and constructed systems. The series reflects on humanity's enduring impulse to communicate—first through stories and symbols, and now through machines—revealing how memory and awareness continue to evolve across time.

A longer version:

Ancestral Algorithms explores the evolution of communication across time—from myth, nature, and ancestral memory to artificial intelligence and constructed systems. Drawing parallels between ancient storytelling and contemporary technologies, the series reflects on how both myths and machines are human-made frameworks designed to transmit knowledge, shape belief systems, and ensure survival. By bringing together organic forms, mechanical structures, and symbolic networks, the work situates the viewer in a space between nature and technology, where memory, awareness, and connection continue to reorganize themselves in new forms.
